THE NEW HIGH-ARM DAVIS MACHINE.

The Boss That Beats Them All.

Why is the Davis called the Boss Machine? For the simple reason that it does the work so much better than other machines—as the workman ship of a "boss," or a master mechanic is superior to that of an apprentice. Just as the "boss" is supposed to do things better than the common workman, so the "Davis" machine does all kinds of work in a manner entirely unattainable by any other machine—hence the common expression so often heard—"It's the Boss machine that beats them all."

St. Louis Chronicle: Fickle for tune, that goddess for which we bend the knee and doff our hats leads men into secluded byways, and along strange pathways. Man is ignorant to-day of what this god does has in store for him to-morrow. These reflections are suggested by a series of incidents that have crept into the life history of Colonel John Scullin, one of St. Louis' millionaires and the sole manager of seventy-one miles of electric street railways in this city. Many years ago, before the war, a stout young lad left his native state—New York—and sought his fortune in the west. He finally settled at Topeka, Kas., where he went to work with a shovel on the dump for a grading contractor on a railroad. His name was plain John Scullin. He had not been in the railroad business long until he saw an opportunity of taking a profitable grading contract on his own account. In the meantime he had formed the acquaintance of a well-to-do old Irish gentleman to whom he unfolded his plans. The old gentleman gave him a good stake and went on his bond, and out of the first grading contract John Scullin made $20,000. That was the foundation of his present fortune. The war came on and the man who had been his friend went south and cast his fortunes with the Confederacy. When the war was over he was penniless. John Scullin had gone on all this time piling up his dollar marks in his bank account. Some ten years ago the man who gave the New York boy his start in life drifted into St. Louis looking for a days labor. Shortly after his arrival here he heard some one mention the name of John Scullin the railroad man. He called to see Col. Scullin in his private office. There he received a warm welcome, and the next day the signature of John Scullin was attached to a check for $10,000 which was placed to the credit of that old man at the bank. He bought some teams and a grading outfit, and has prospered every day since he met his long lost friend.

A FAMOUS HISTORICAL DUEL.

Twelve Swords-men Slain By One Man in the Presence of an Army.

To give an idea of what a brave man can do if he knows fencing thoroughly, and but keeps cool and collected in danger, we will relate an historical duel. So extraordinary is this combat that it would be held a romance, had it not been witnessed by a whole army. The hero is Jean Louis, of whom we have already spoken as one of the great masters of the beginning of this century, and the duel happened in Madrid in 1813. He was the master-at-arms of the Thirty-second regiment of French infantry; the first regiment, composed entirely of Italians, formed part of the same brigade.

Regimental esprit de corps and rivalries of nationality caused constant quarrels, when swords were often whipped out or butts exchanged. After a small battle had occurred in the streets of Madrid in which over two hundred French and Italian soldiers had taken part, the officers of the two regiments, in a council of war assembled, decided to give such breaches of order a great blow, and to re-establish discipline; they decreed that the masters-at-arms of the two regiments should take up the quarrel and fight it out.

Imagine a whole army in battle-array on one of the large plains that surround Madrid. In the center a large ring is left open for the contestants. This spot is raised above the plain so that not one of the spectators of this tragic scene—gayly dressed officers, soldiers in line, Spaniards, excited as never a bull fight excited them—will miss one phase of the contest. It is before ten thousand men that the honor of an army is about to be avenged in the blood of thirty brave men.

The drum is heard. Two men, naked to the waist, step in the ring. The first is tall and strong; his black eyes roll disdainfully upon the gaping crowd; he, Giacomo Ferrari, the celebrated Italian. The second, tall, also handsome, and with muscles like steel, stands modestly awaiting the word of command; his name is Jean Louis. The seconds take their places on either side of their principals. A death-like silence ensues.

"On guard!" The two masters cross swords. Giacomo Ferrari lunges repeatedly at Jean Louis, but in vain; his every thrust is met by a parry. He makes up his mind to bide his chance, and caresses and teases his opponent's blade. Jean Louis, calm and watchful, lends himself to the play, when, quicker than lightning, the Italian jumps aside with a loud yell and makes a terrible lunge at Jean Louis—a Florentine trick, often successful. But with extraordinary rapidity, Jean Louis has parried, and responds quickly in the shoulder.

"It is nothing," cries Giacomo, "a mere scratch," and they again fall on guard. Almost directly he is hit in the breast. This time the sword of Jean Louis, who is now attacking, penetrates deeply. Giacomo's face becomes livid, his sword drops from his hand, and he falls heavily on the turf. He is dead.

Jean Louis is already in position. He wipes his reeking blade, then, with the point of his sword in the ground, he calmly awaits the next man.

The best fencer of the First regiment has just been carried away a corpse; but the day is not yet over. Fourteen adversaries are there, impatient to measure swords with the conqueror, burning to avenge the master they had deemed invincible.

Jean Louis hardly had two minutes' rest. He is ready. A new adversary stands before him. A sinister click of swords is heard, a lunge, a parry, a riposte, and then a cry, a sigh, and all is over. A second body is before Jean Louis.

A third adversary advances. They want Jean Louis to rest. "I am not tired," he answers, with a smile.

The signal is given. The Italian is as tall as the one who lies there a corpse covered by a military cloak. He has closely watched Jean Louis' play and thinks he has guessed the secret of his victories. He multiplies his feints and tricks, then, all at once, bounding on his prey, he gives his opponent a terrible thrust in the lower leg. But Jean Louis' sword has parried and is now deep within his opponent's breast.

What need to relate any more? Ten new adversaries followed him, and the ten fell before Jean Louis amid the excited yells and roars of an army.

At the request of the Thirty-second regiment's colonel, who thought the lesson sufficient, Jean Louis, after much pressing, consented to stop the combat; and he shook hands with the two survivors, applauded by ten thousand men.

From that day fights ceased between French and Italian soldiers.

This wonderful and gigantic combat might be held a fable were not all the facts above stated still found in the archives of the ministry of war.—Lippincott's.

Fashionable Furs. Russian sable is the most fashionable fur and also the most costly. Who has a coat of its fine, silky, blue-brown hair has a royal garment. Also it is used to trim every other fur. Seal skin is the standard fur for cloaks. Next in order for whole garments comes Astrakhan.

Astrakhan is merely a trade name for Russian lamb skins, of which there is a variety, the curly fleece being only one of them. Black and gray fox are fashionable also, and skunk hair is very much used for borders, taking the place of sable.

It will be useful to remember when choosing fur that the short hair is peculiarly suitable for whole garments and the long hair for decorative uses.—Philadelphia Times.

"Jadley—Does Datsion still go with the same girl that he did last summer?" "Jellyby—Yes." "Jadley—She still accepts his attentions as if she cared for him?" "Jellyby—Oh, yes, after a fashion. He's her husband now."

"—I nebbah pays no 'tention ter a gossip," said Aunt Huldah. "Er gossip ain't got time ter git at de facts, now, an' you givin' 'em dat her true news ain't new an' her new news ain't true."—Washington Star.

BOOKS AND WRITERS.

MARION CRAWFORD will have two new novels in American magazines next year.

SOMEBODY understands that James Whitcomb Riley is going to write a novel.

The original manuscript of "Poems by Two Brothers," written by Alfred and Charles Tennyson many years ago, was sold at auction in London on Friday for $2,400.

REV. FATHER PALLADIUS, the famous Russian missionary, has brought out, after twenty years of labor, a Chinese-Russian dictionary containing 11,668 hieroglyphics.

SOME manuscripts of Tennyson's earliest published poems were sold at auction in London two weeks ago and bought for £480 by the representative of a Cambridge publishing house.

WHITTIER'S homestead is now owned by a retired merchant of Haverhill, Mass., who is willing to sell the estate on condition that it shall be properly and permanently cared for as a memorial of the poet.

M. ALPHONSE DAUDET intends to spend some time in England, first at the Isle of Wight and subsequently at London. He does not speak English, but he has a good knowledge of English literature through the translations, Dickens being his favorite author.

IN the 227 years since "Don Quixote" was published 1,324 editions have been printed of which 528 were Spanish, 304 English, 179 French, 90 Italian, 84 Portuguese, 45 German, 18 Swedish, 9 Polish, 8 Danish, 6 Russian, 5 Greek, 3 Rumanian, 4 Catalanian, 1 Basque and 1 Latin.

PEOPLE IN OTHER LANDS.

LOBSTERS and salmon are so disliked by the shah of Persia, that when either is served at a table where he is seated he leaves the room.

THE khan of Khiva, now visiting some of his fellow rulers in Europe, travels with his mollah (or priest) and his own cook. He feels tolerably safe, no matter what turns up.

THE khedive of Egypt uses a type-writer and is so pleased with the instrument that it is said he has conferred the honor of the Medjidie on the inventor.

THE oldest member of the British peerage is the duke of Northumberland, who is nearly ninety years of age. He has been a member of five cabinets, but always in a subordinate position where he couldn't do any harm.

M. DUFFY, the new minister of commerce, is one of the conspicuous, made men in the existing French cabinet. His father was a liveried servant of the prefecture, of Puy, while his mother kept a small tobacco shop.

THE case of Rev. Joseph Best, of Hamilton, Ont., affords further proof that there is little in a name. Rev. Joe's piety revolted at the idea of permitting a servant to wash potatoes on Sunday, and he debated the matter so forcefully with Mrs. Best that he was sent to prison for two months for assault and battery.

NEWS NOTES FROM ABROAD.

THE Egyptians kneaded their bread in a wooden bowl with their feet.

A STEAM DERRICK that easily lifts an eighty-ton gun and swings it around as readily as if it were a bale of hay is on one of the docks at Hamburg.

IN England, France, Germany and Belgium the number of births per thousand of population is steadily falling.

THE rate of decrease is slower in some of these countries, but is marked in all.

THE Castle of Grey, where Voltaire spent so much time in the society of his blue-stocking friend, Marchioness du Chatelet, has just been sold for $500,000. The buyer is a rich French manufacturer, M. Viellard-Migeon.

BAVARIA continues to take the lead in Germany in beer drinking, the consumption during 1890-91 having been over two hundred and sixty quarts per inhabitant. Posen heads the list in schnapp drinking—about twenty-five quarts per inhabitant.

SEVERAL men who have outlived their greatness are now glad to earn their living as coachmen in Berlin. Among them are sixteen nobles, seven retired army officers and three pulpitis pastors.

Three British nobilities now gleefully crack the whip as London cabmen; they are an ex-member of parliament, a baron and a marquis.

The world is better for it. The world is better because of such a remedy as Ballard's Snow Liniment, because this article relieves it of much pain and misery, and we are thus enabled to enjoy its brighter side.

It positively cures all forms of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Headache, Sick Headache, Lame Back, all sores and wounds, cuts, sprains, bruises, stiff joints, contracted muscles, poison, eruptions, corns, weak back, and all pain and inflammation on man or beast. It is the best because it is the most penetrating. Beware of all white Liniments which may be palmed off on you for Ballard's Snow Liniment. There is none like it.

In Paint

The best is the cheapest. Strictly Pure White Lead is best; properly applied it will not scale, chip, chalk, or rub off; it firmly adheres to the wood and forms a permanent base for repainting. Paints which peel or scale have to be removed by scraping or burning before satisfactory repainting can be done. When buying it is important to obtain properly made. Time has proven that white lead made by the "Old Dutch" process of slow corrosion possesses qualities that cannot be obtained by any other method of manufacture. This process consumes four to six months time, and produces the brands that have given White Lead its character as the standard paint.

"Southern" "Collier"

are standard brands of strictly pure Lead made by the "Old Dutch" process. You get the best in buying them. You can produce any desired color by tinting these brands of white lead with National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors.

For sale by the most reliable dealers in Paints everywhere. If you are going to paint, it will pay you to send to us for a book containing information that may save you many a dollar; it will only cost you a postal card to do so.
